

Brown-Bag Lunch: Blockchain beyond the Hype

This keynote represents an internal training over lunch. The goal is to expose your staff to new technological advancements and give you an insight into the potentials of decentralized technologies.

Description

Blockchain, Bitcoin and cryptocurrencies are on everyone's lips. But the potential of decentralized technologies goes way beyond the cryptocurrency applications.

Just like the digitalization, decentralization has the potential to profoundly change our lives.

But what does decentralization mean and why should it interest you?

Our goal at Dezentrum is to research - through future experiments - the potential implications of decentralization on our businesses and everyday lives:

How can we use decentralized technologies to shape a common digital future?

As a company you don't need to understand how the internet works technically, but you need to realize its potentials. It is the same with decentralized technologies and the Blockchain. Our brown-bag lunches shall give your staff an overview, enable them to think about how your company can use these new tools to shape your future and ignite new ideas in your organization.
